"Ground Up is a rare breed—a sparkling work of light satire written by a ridiculously talented man. The book starts out funny, keeps being funny, then actually gets funnier. There is not a wasted word, not one lame passage. Mr. Idov likes to say that he is not a 'serious' writer.

Ground Up made me laugh out loud at least a handful of times. I look forward to reading more from Idov. Since I am in the throes of a business upstart, I did not find this story uplifting. Slightly honest and replete with humor found amongst disaster, this is a good read. I did finish the novel in the throes of the flu, however ;-) review 1: An inconsequential tale engagingly told. Michael Idov's protagonist, Mike Scharf, is a neo-yuppie who has a charming way with words as he narrates the inevitable failure of an idealistic coffee-shop venture--the cooking area is so tiny that he dubs it a "kitchennyet."
