review 1: So I liked this book...kind of. Now let me explain. I did like this book, I liked the characters, they were charismatic with stories and voices that I liked. The premise of the story is kind of cool, a family protecting their home with powers that people don't know they have and then how they are heroes.

I'm not sure why this shows up in my library as "Make Me a Real Girl", the name/title of the book I got was Ghostly Guardian (Volume One) The Demon Isle Witches. At any rate, I've read a lot of paranormal books and while this one was not full of grammatical errors as some are, this book was just too trite, the writing perhaps a bit amateur.

A black dog is a motif of a spectral or demonic entity found primarily in the folklore of the British Isles. The black dog is essentially a nocturnal apparition, in some cases a shapeshifter, and is often said to be associated with the Devil or described as a ghost or hellhound. Its appearance was regarded as a portent of death.

Laura0943--I enjoyed both parts of your ghostly Scottish guardian account. I just left a comment to elfstone on another story where I rambled on about the theory that most apparitions are telepathic in nature. Your experience with a voice telepathically communicating with you is a great example of how the deceased interact with the living.
