The Hollow Men by T. S. Eliot: Critical Analysis

The Hollow Men Poem We are the hollow men, we are the stuffed men. The first verses of the poem indicate a contradiction that surprises us. Hollow means "having a cavity within", implying the idea of 'emptiness'. It also has a figurative meaning, that of "lacking real value or significance". Stuffed, however, means "filled [...]"

The Hollow Men Poem Analysis - PK Planet

The short lines, "For Thine is / Life is / For Thine is" (Eliot 92-94), indicate the unwillingness of the hollow men to put their fears into words. The poem ends much the same as their lives: "Not with a bang but a whimper." (Eliot 96). This line indicates that in spite of the hope, everything is futile.

The Hollow Men Quotes and Analysis | GradeSaver

If "The Hollow Men" shows where idealism leads, it offers a fleeting glimpse of a way out of emptiness. Though nature, other people, and God have an almost entirely negative existence in the poem, they do exist as something outside the hollow men. The poem places the "stuffed men" in the context of an external world, God's world.
