The writing of textbooks and making them freely available on the web is an idea whose time has arrived. Most college mathematics textbooks attempt to be all things to all people and, as a result, are much too big and expensive. This perhaps made some sense when these books were rather expensive to produce and distribute--but this time has passed.

I really enjoy teaching from this textbook, it's well organized and it does correlate each lesson to one or more of the current Georgia Performance standards in mathematics for ninth graders. The text consists of 6 chapters, the first 3 covering algebra, the next 2 on geometry, and the last one on probability and statistics.
